Compelling, exhilarating and arousing

“Starla successfully maintains the delicate balance of offering romance and eroticism with a compelling story. While Phoebe’s diary discusses deeply sensual and erotic experiences, it never delves into outwardly explicit details of her encounters. Within these experiences Starla consequently offers titillating scenarios to which the reader can play out in full within their own imagination.” — Amazon AU Customer

I Heart Mr. Collins is the story of Phoebe Braddock’s forbidden love with her high school English teacher. What started as a crush escalates to heated passion. They thought it was safe to pursue a relationship: She was a consenting adult; he was leaving the school. They thought wrong. When his teaching transfer falls through, Mr. Collins returns to a position of authority over Phoebe, forcing him to choose between his career and reputation, or the promise of an exciting new love.

Phoebe tells her story by reflecting on a series of diary entries at the start of each chapter. Through this journaling, she reveals her exploration of sexuality and inner desires without resorting to explicit descriptions. As her relationships develop, she becomes more adventurous, taking risks that are outright dangerous at times.

This YA contemporary romance explores themes of taboo relationships, sexual awakenings, polyamory, and coming of age.

Highly recommend!!!

“From the beginning to the end, so much happened and I could have never imagined the direction the story would take. I loved the way this author pulled all the drama, romance and at times pain and suspense together to tell a beautiful and exciting story with a perfect HEA.”

Fantastic

“What an amazing author! This book is excellent. Lots of great imagery and heat. L. Starla is a very skilled writer who excels at investing you into the story and developing the characters. Highly recommend.” — Author Jennifer Hartmann (Amazon Bestseller)

From Prying Eyes tells the taboo love story of twin siblings Sophie and Stefan.

Sophie Pacini is a good girl. Hard working, principled, loyal to her friends and family, and a devout Catholic. During her first year of university, she undergoes a transformation from shy tomboy into an attractive woman who starts exploring her sexuality; a change that achieves its intended goals. Derrick, the hot Venetian neighbour she has wanted for years, finally sees her as more than his geeky friend.

Matters become complicated, however, when Sophie discovers Derrick is not who she really wants. Through her journey of self-discovery, she learns that her heart belongs to a man she cannot have. A man who knows her better than anyone and loves her in the same inappropriate way. He is literally the man of her dreams and he is her twin brother.

Upon discovering their mutual feelings, the Pacini twins face all manner of challenges, from other relationship prospects and crises of faith to cultural intolerance and family feuds. Then there is the biggest hurdle of all: the law. For each barrier they overcome, another presents itself. For Sophie, it all starts when a mysterious stranger visits her dreams, making love to her in the dark.

This NA contemporary romance explores themes like challenging conservative ideals and taboos, freedom of sexual expression, and overcoming barriers to love.
